I have endeavored to transact the business as overseer of the poor as economical as possible, but we have some new cases. Mr. Albee has made quite a bill; his disease is such he could not live with a family; his wood bill is necessarily large. Mrs. Whitney has had a hard fit of sickness; had to have a skillful surgical operation which was expensive. Frank Kelley was sick and died with consumption. I rendered him necessary assistance, but think the bills reasonable. His brother who lives in Poultney promised to pay these bills. Perhaps he may.

Your auditors have been requested by the selectmen to say that there has been presented to them for allowance, a large number of claims for overwork on the highway during the year 1884, and not feeling authorized to allow said claims, have referred the matter to the town for their consideration and discretion. The selectmen have no doubts in regard to the justice of some of the claims, but would prefer instructions from the town before further action is taken by them.
